Natte Valleij Venue

Natte Valleij offers its spacious and stunning gardens and its magnificent old wine cellars as a very exclusive wedding venue. The garden has extensive hidden lighting amongst the trees, which provide a wondrous backdrop at night. The farm is the original land grant of the area. Natte Valleij was, in fact, the setting of Joy Packer's best selling novel "The Valley of the Vines". There is an imposing Cape Dutch homestead (1775) overlooking the gardens.

The venue offers a blank canvas where each bride can project her own ideas in her own style with the help of our specialized and talented team. The Cellars are in three portions, the front one still having the original yellow wood and reed ceilings dating from 1745. Another section can double as a chapel with its vaulted ceiling. The third and largest section can accommodate up to 180 guests.
